A Word to Mr. John Tutchin,

About his Scandalous Ballad, that goes to the Tune of One Hundred Thirty Four,

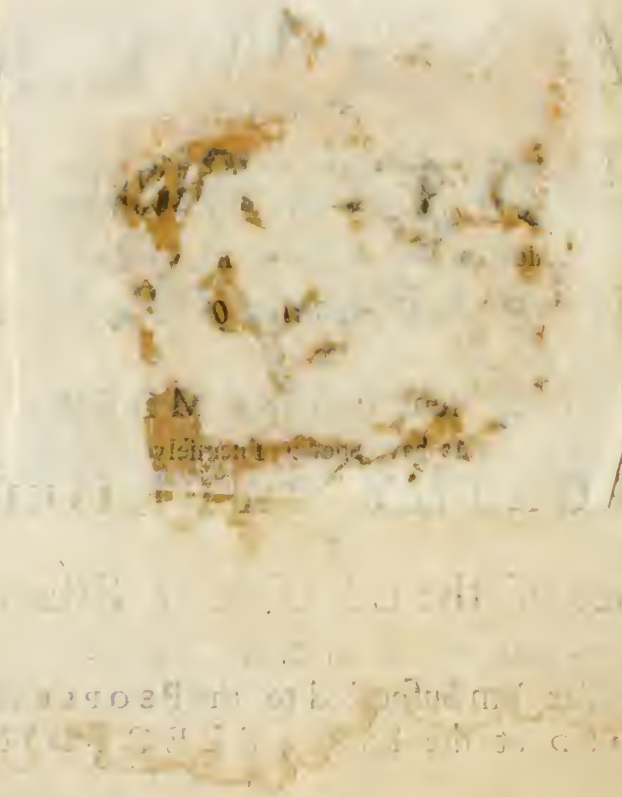
On the ſame SUBJECT.

LONDON: Printed in the Year 1705.



TACKERS

Vindicated, &c.

IT has always been the Practice of this pretended Moderate Party, to anticipate the Diſſolutions of Parliament, by Scattering abroad Liſts of ſuch Worthy Members, as have been Impediments to their Deſigns, on purpoſe to prepoſſeſs their Electors againſt 'em. But one would have thought this Artifice of theirs was grown ſo Stale, that it would have been Super-Annuated by being us'd ſo often in the late Glorious Reign, and of no farther Service to them. But their Thoughts are different from other Men's, and the more any thing has made for their purpoſe, the more they expect it ſhall continue to advance their Intereſt. Like the Fiſherman who fell into a Grievous Paſſion with his Net that had brought him Home many a delicate Kettle of Fiſh, becauſe it could not hold out, after it had been worn to Pieces, to do the ſame for him at every Turn. Becauſe their Sham Vindications, their Ballads, and their Legion Letters formerly intercepted, and gain'd over the Voices of Poor, Unwary, Credulous People, they expect the ſame Effect now; when if they would have Conſider'd how little an Impreſſion their Dine-Tavern Black Liſt (wherein moſt of the Gentlemen put down in this, made an Honourable Appearance) made upon Elections that were ſubſequent to it, they would have had no Thoughts of Engaging in the ſame Project again, but have had recourſe to another Experiment. But poor Wretches! Their Fancy is jaded, their Invention Tir'd, and their Stratagems ſo Bewilder'd, that they make good Solomon's Aſſertion, and prove that there is nothing New (among them) under the Sun. Nor need there, ſince they are arriv'd at ſuch a Height of Villainy, ſuch a Perfection of Calumny and Reproach, that to gain their Good Word is enough to gain any Perſon the Ill One among Men of Honeſt and Unſuſpected Characters. Tho' we ought to thank 'em for this Piece of Policy in Behalf of the Church, ſince in Publiſhing theſe Venerable Names, they gave an Opportunity to the Whole Kingdom, of knowing what Gentlemen are prepar'd to ſtand in the Gap againſt all Invaſions of the Rights of the Eſtabliſhed Religion. But theſe Incendiaries, will return for their Anſwer, That the Perſons taken Notice of in their Liſt, would have Tack'd the Occaſional Conformity Bill to the Land-Tax, and upon that Account muſt be in the French Intereſt, becauſe they did it on Purpoſe to Obſtruct our Carrying on the War into Champaign and Burgundy this Year. For Heaven's ſake, how could this be? They could not imagine the Houſe of L—— would have Voted againſt it, eſpecially when it came unto them with much Eaſier Terms for the Diſſenters, than even they Propos'd in their own Scheme, the Seſſions before; and they were ſuch Avow'd Enemies to Lewis the 14th, as not to Stick at a few Punctilio's, while the Common Cauſe requir'd the Greateſt Diſpatch: Neither had the Commons the leaſt Surmiſe that any among 'em, Eſpecially a Bp could read a long Speech, and that before Her Majeſty, who is Juſtly Stil'd the Defender of the Faith, in order to Kick it out of the Houſe. However, it was Actually ſo, and we ought to thank the Sneakers, who hung down their Heads and Cowardly Deſerted the Cauſe of their Creator, for withdrawing Themſelves, at a Time, when there was moſt Occaſion for their Aſſiſtance, and leaving the Church of England, in a Church of England Reign, without any other Proviſion made for, than what had been taken Care of even in the Days of Popery and Slavery! Theſe would make a Black Liſt without a

Sarcaſm;

Sarcasm; and it's Pity but Sir Fr—— Ch——, Mr. H——, and the Rest of the Sheep-Biting Gang, would enter themselves as Registred Men, for the Occasional Conformist's Service.

It is to be hop'd the Persons whom this valuable List is Address'd to, will make that Use of it as it Deserves, and take Notice, That the Gentlemen of the Best Estates in the Kingdom are in it, which is a Sufficicient Argument of their being in no other Interest, than in that of their Queen, and Country, where they have such Large Demesns: Since they have most to Lose in Case the French King should be too hard for Us, and of Consequence will be the more Vigilant, and upon their Guard to Preserve what they are Possess'd of.

It is likewise desir'd they would be pleas'd to take Notice, That the Church which they are such Brave Assertors of its Rites, is National, That there is an Act of Parliament for Uniformity, and that it is not Repeal'd by the Toleration Act, which is in no wise Invaded on Account of this Bill; and that those who make it their Business to Secure the Established Religion, can have no sinister Designs, against the Established Government, or the Publick Good.

They are also Requested to distinguish between Moderate Men, and Men of Heat and Passion; Between such as leave the Decision of Elections wholly to the People, and such as make Use of Clandestine Means by way of Publick Prints to Amuse them in their Free Votes, and Endeavour by Fraud and Apparent Falshoods, to Draw 'em over to a Party that make it their Business to Embroil Affairs, and would Introduce Anarchy and Confusion into the Best of Constitutions.

Lastly, That they make a Difference between such as wholy Rely upon their Countrymen's Affections, without having any Recourse to Publick Prints, to Blacken their Adversaries; and such as having neither Honour, Wealth, or Honesty to Plead for 'em, are forc'd to do it in order to Varnish over their own Real Guilt, by Exclaiming against what is only Fictitious; and bear it in their Mind, that those who have no other Value for God's Holy Worship, than to Endeavour to let the Wolves in Sheeps Cloathing, break into the Pales of the Church, can neither be good Subjects, good Christians, or good Parents, which makes it of Abſolute Neceſſity that they be not Credited, leſt a Worſe Thing come unto Us.

Not but the Church of England might even the Tally with theſe Whigs, and pay them in their own Coin, could they deſcend to ſuch Sordid and Mean Inclinations. The Liſt of ſuch as Voted againſt this Bill in Both Houſes, would be a Sufficient Anſwer to theirs; But they are ſo well ſatisfy'd in the Affections and Juſtice of their Country, as to leave themſelves wholly to their Determinations without it. The Kit-Kat Club in the Pall-Mall, might alſo Furniſh them with ſufficient Heads for ſuch an Undertaking; they being given to underſtand that they are fall'n off the Deſign of their firſt Inſtitution; and from turning Criticks upon Wit, are fall'n into Criticiſms upon Policy, I might ſay Agents in it; but flinging Dirt is none of their Talent, and they leave ſuch Undertakings to the Conſolidator-Monger, Daniel L' Foe, and his very worthy Fellow-Labourer in Sedition, John Tutchin, Cenſor Morum, and Obſervator General, not without ſome Aſſurances, That the One's Dealing in the World of the Moon, may once more provide him a Stronger Place than is Prepared for Lunaticks; and the Other's Perſeverance in Writing more Ballads to the Tune of One Hundred Thirty Four, may again ſend him either a Grazing from his Truſty Roger's October, or bring him to the Place, which he gives out, is only Provided for Bakers, an Airy Scotch Caſement; for not to Flatter him, the ſame Perſon that Compliments him with this, has that Numerical Ballad to ſhew in his own Hand-Writing, which the Reader may take as follows.

I Think I ſhall never Diſpair
The Beating at Blenheim full ſore,
Since I have gotten ſome where
One Hundred and Thirty Four.

Tho' Marl——gh has Ruin'd my Cauſe,
I'll ſoon the Matter Reſtore,
For amongſt their Makers of Laws,
I've One hundred Thirty four.

The

The C——b I've Nouriſh'd ſo long,
In Time will pay off their Score,
For I find his Party is Strong,
'Tis One hundred Thirty four.

The Land-Tax had ſurely miſcarried,
And I had had All in my Power,
Had but the Queſtion been Carry'd
By one Hundred Thirty four.

But they have put ſome of my Friends
Into Places of Profit and Power,
Which ſpoil'd for this Seſſions the Ends
Of one Hundred thirty four.

There's Ha——d, and H---ty, and H---w,
And St. J---n, and Ma——l, and M--re,
Have now Forſaken their Friends
The One hundred Thirty four.

But I think my Affairs at Sea
Go Better than ever Before,
Since they are Employ'd that way
Of one Hundred Thirty four.

Their Captains Surrender with Eaſe
Their Convoy and Ships of War,
Which ſhews they're all of a Piece
With One hundred Thirty four.

I'll ſend their K---g Home to his Throne,
Which his Father abandon'd before,
Where he'll be Supported and own'd
By One hundred Thirty four.

The Scotch will no longer Deceive him.
The Channel is Guarded no more;
The Party which is to Receive him
Is One hundred Thirty four.

St. Poll with an Engliſh Fleet,
To the Number of Half a Score,
Shall Guard him if it's thought meet
By One hundred Thirty four.

I'll not value the Whigs of a Louſe,
Tho' a Check be given to my Power,
I'm Secure in a Proteſtant Houſe
Of One hundred Thirty four.

To keep their Brave Allies in Heart,
I'm glad their Friend Talard's gone o're,
I hope he'll again do his part
With One hundred Thirty four.

Tho' he Sheath'd his Sword with Diſgrace
Yet he knows how to draw a Lovi'dore,
That Weapon will always take place
With One hundred Thirty four.

When my Troops from Bavaria were Packing,
No Plaiſter ſo fitted my Sore,
As the Brawling, and Wrangling, and Tacking
Of One hundred Thirty four.

The King of the Spaniards and Romans
Will be humbled and turn'd out of Doors,
If I get but a New Houſe of Commons
Like One hundred Thirty four.
